

EXONERATED FROM DEATH ROW: RONALD KEINE

In 1974, Ronald Keine was sentenced to death for a crime he did not commit. He spent two years on New Mexico's death row before new evidence led to his exoneration in 1976. Since his release, Ron has traveled across the country telling his story of wrongful conviction. As an Assistant Director of Witness to Innocence, he continues to speak out against the death penalty.
